Course description:

This course introduces students to the grammar, vocabulary, and styles of Classical Chinese (文言文 or 古代漢語). Because Classical Chinese is a literary (rather than spoken) language, our class will be structured around guided reading and translation of classical texts. A strong background in Chinese characters and their pinyin readings is required.

Course objectives:

By the end of this course, students will be able to read, analyze, and compose simple Literary Sinitic texts, as well as to demonstrate familiarity with a variety of passages from some of the most famous texts in Chinese literary history.

Course breakdown:

Attendance, participation & effort: 10%
Homeworks: 15%
Tests: 20%
Midterm: 25%
Final exam: 30%

Attendance and participation:

Attendance is mandatory, and entails the following: 1) physical attendance at all classes; 2) timely completion of all assigned reading; 3) observance of basic classroom decorum (no chatting, texting, eating, gaming, or surfing the internet); and 4) active participation in all classroom discussions. Students observed texting, surfing the internet, or engaged in any non-class activities on any mobile devices will be docked half credit for that day, without notification. Students are also required to bring all relevant materials physically (not digitally) to class.

You are given 2 excused absences for the semester, with no questions asked. These may be used for any reason, and do not require justification. However, missing a class for health reasons or travel fall will count as one "excused absence." Any student who misses more than FOUR classes will automatically fail the course.

Extra credit:

Students may attend any current exhibit (archaeological, fine arts, etc.) or academic lecture on premodern China, and submit a one-page written report of their experience within two weeks of the event. Admission tickets and/or event info must be stapled to your report. Your report should include a summary of the event itself, as well as any particular observations and/or points of interest which struck you. All reports must adhere to Rutgers standards of academic integrity (see below). A maximum of two reports are accepted over the course of the semester.

Statement of Academic Integrity & Public Domain:

All student writing for the course may be read and shared by all members of this class. All the work you submit in this course must have been written for this course and not another and must originate with you in form and content with all contributory sources fully and specifically acknowledged. Violations of academic integrity, such as cheating, plagiarism, helping others to violate academic integrity, or submitting another's work as your own, will not be tolerated. Any violation will result in zero credit for that assignment and will be reported to the Office of Student Conduct. Ignorance of the rules and conventions of attribution and citation is not considered a mitigating factor. See Rutgers University guidelines on academic integrity at: <http://academicintegrity.rutgers.edu/integrity.shtml> .

CHINESE 101: ELEMENTARY CHINESE (2014) COURSE INFORMATION & SYLLABUS

Chinese 101-102 is a beginning level course. It is assumed the students have no previous knowledge of spoken or written Chinese. It is university policy that if you can already speak Chinese but want to learn how to read and write, you are NOT allowed in this class. Please take Beginning Chinese Reading and Writing for Mandarin Speakers (Chinese 121), which is also offered this semester: MY Period 5 in Scott 116. That course is designed especially for you. Your college deans will delete any credit you earn in Chinese 101 and/or 102 if they find out you were overqualified for the class -- even if you have completed the course -- and we cannot do anything about it. That is not this case if you take Chinese 121. If you are a speaker of Cantonese, you are welcome in this class. However, if you already know how to read and write Chinese and only need to learn Spoken Standard Chinese (Mandarin), you might find it more useful to take Basic Spoken Chinese (Chinese 107), which is also offered this semester: Period 5 MW in Murray 212 & Th Murray 113.

Chinese 101-102 Section 70 is a Distance Learning class taught simultaneously on the Rutgers New Brunswick and Newark campuses via live video. Students in Newark and New Brunswick are in class together over the Rutgers Distance Learning Network. The instruction originates from New Brunswick, though the instructors also make occasional visits to the Newark classroom. In course content, classroom drills and interaction, and all homework and exam requirements, Section 70 is 100% identical to all the other sections.

COURSE MATERIALS

1. REQUIRED: *Kung Fu (I): An Elementary Chinese Text. By John C. Jamieson and Lin Tao. Hong Kong: Chinese University Press, 2002. (ISBN 978-962-201-867-9 and 962-201-867-X -- one of these may be the isbn for the text and workbook combined) [referred to in the syllabus as KF]
2. REQUIRED: *Kung Fu (I): Student Exercise Manual. By John C. Jamieson and Lin Tao. Hong Kong: Chinese University Press, 2002. (ISBN 978-962-996-042-1) [referred to in the syllabus as EM]

IMPORTANT NOTE: The Student Exercise Manual is the workbook for this class from which most of the homework assignments will be drawn. However, students are required to copy out the homework assignments by hand on separate sheets of paper before completing them. DO NOT turn your homework in on pages torn from this book. The reasons for this are: (1) The additional copying required will allow you more practice writing Chinese; (2) some separate assignments are on the front and back of the same page/sheet in the book and if you hand in one side you will not have access to the other side for the next assignment; and (3) leaving the exercise book blank will allow you to use it to test yourself for review and practice. The Chinese character assignments can be done on practice sheets in the course packet (see below), of which you should make copies if you run out.

3. OPTIONAL: *Audio CD for Kung Fu (I): An Elementary Chinese Text. By John C. Jamieson and Lin Tao. Hong Kong: Chinese University Press, 2002. NOTE: Entirely new audio for the text, recorded by our Rutgers

Chinese teachers will be available in the course Sakai sites for your sections. So this optional purchase is not recommended.

4. OPTIONAL: Oxford Starter Chinese Dictionary: Oxford University Press, 2000. (ISBN 0-19-860258-8)

All the above materials are available from the University Bookstore at One Penn Plaza, opposite the New Brunswick train station, and probably also from New Jersey Books. You are ALSO REQUIRED to print out a copy of the COURSE PACKET—parts of which we will use in class.

The course packet contains a Pronunciation Packet that you are required to go through on your own, at your own pace the first three weeks of the semester, in the Language Lab, ask for "Tape Series 101-102 D." The Pronunciation Packet contains keys for all of the exercises it includes.

Course Packet Contents

You should print out a copy of the Course Packet and bring it with you to class daily (as that way you can be sure you will have it ready to work with whenever necessary). We have made the packet contents available for download as .pdf files that you can print yourself by following the below links in the web copy of this syllabus at

<http://www.rci.rutgers.edu/~rsimmon/Chi101KFsy1.htm>

1. Pronunciation Packet
2. Pinyin Drills (also includes some brief notes on Chinese character structure and writing)
3. Supplementary Class Exercises for Kung Fu Lessons 1 to 10
4. Character Practice Sheets
5. Character Reference Sheets for Kung Fu Lessons 1 to 10 (and part of 11)
6. Supplementary reference sheets for the Chinese characters in Kung Fu Lessons 1 to 10

The following file contains material that was produced by a student and is not included in the Course Packet. But we include it here in case you might find it useful:

While purchase of the CD for the text is optional, you are still ALSO REQUIRED to work with the audio recordings of the lessons. Entire audio for the text, recorded by our Rutgers Chinese teachers, will be available in the course Sakai sites for your sections. Note that if you work with the CD or tapes in the Language Lab—we receive a record of your attendance there.

NOTE: You should actively use the audio recordings for practice. That is you should not only listen to them, but you should also repeat after them, imitating the sounds of Chinese. You should do that over and over again for each lesson. You will find it difficult, if not nearly impossible, to make progress in learning Chinese if you do not constantly use the audio recording for listening and reading practice.

RUTGERS MULTIMEDIA CHINESE TEACHING SYSTEM and SAKAI-DIGICLASS

To supplement your work in the Language Lab and with the textbook the Rutgers Department of Asian Languages and Cultures has developed the Rutgers Multimedia Chinese Teaching System (RMCTS). It is on-line and ready for your use at <http://chinese.rutgers.edu>. This site contains extensive text and audio practice with challenging and interesting content to supplement our Chinese language courses.

Sakai-Digiclass: In addition to RMCTS, the Chinese language program also participates in the Rutgers Sakai-Digiclass language site which is located at <https://sakai.rutgers.edu/> (original version at <http://fas-digiclass.rutgers.edu/>). The Chinese section of this site currently contains interactive exercises geared to the Kung Fu lessons as well as the RMCTS lessons. Beginning the 4th week of classes, these exercises are a required component of your course homework, though you are allowed to complete them at your own pace. However, credit will only be granted to students who complete the Sakai-Digiclass Kung Fu 101 exercises regularly as the semester progresses, in-step with the lessons. (Credit will NOT be given to students who wait until the last minute and complete the Sakai-Digiclass exercises all at once or in two or three sessions.) To receive the homework credit, have the Digiclass results e-mailed to your section instructor.

Please explore RMCTS and the Chinese Sakai-Digiclass and visit them often this semester. We urge you to come to us anytime with questions, comments, and criticism regarding the RMCTS and Sakai-Digiclass sites.

COURSE WORK

Learning a language, especially one as difficult as Chinese, is a very demanding task. You are required to attend every class, and to regularly attend the Language Lab.

You must also complete and turn in ALL assigned homework on time before class begins. Some (about half) of the homework assignments will be corrected orally in class to be turned in for credit; others will be corrected and graded by the instructor. Your instructor will determine which assignments are to be graded and which are to be corrected orally and let you know after the assignment is due.

The "Audio & Sakai-Digiclass Assignments" are listed on the syllabus according to the week we want you to work on a given lesson audio and in Sakai-Digiclass. You should not try to finish the audio and Sakai-Digiclass work in one sitting. Instead, you should work on a regular daily basis on the audio and the Sakai-Digiclass sites, pacing your work in increments timed to finish one lesson over a few days during the week it is assigned and before you begin work on the next.

In addition to regular classroom work there will be weekly tests or quizzes, three hour exams, and a final. All tests and exams are cumulative.

GROUND RULES

1. Make-ups for missed quizzes and exams will only be given for legitimate absences that are reported at the Rutgers absence reporting site: <https://sims.rutgers.edu/ssra/>. If you are ill (and present a note from your doctor) or observing a religious holiday, you will be allowed to makeup that quiz or exam.
2. You are expected to attend all classes; if you expect to miss one or two classes, please use the University absence reporting website <https://sims.rutgers.edu/ssra/> to indicate the date and reason for your absence. An email is automatically sent to your course instructor.

Please note: Course attendance policy is that you are allowed two free, unexplained absences. Any further absences will not be tolerated. We will make daily note of your attendance and your final grade will be reduced by three percentage points for each day you are absent after the first time. Absences can be excused only for religious reasons or by presentation of a note from your doctor stating a valid medical cause, and must be reported before the class you miss through the absence reporting site at <https://sims.rutgers.edu/ssra/>.

3. Three tardies of 15 minutes or less will count as one absence. If you are more than 15 minutes late it will be counted as an absence. Also, if you are tardy more than three times, the instructor will no longer be responsible for including you in drill or answering your questions regarding missed lesson in class.

4. All homework assignments should be finished and handed in before the class begins. Exercises handed in on time will be corrected, graded, and returned to you promptly. Late assignments will be noted but will NOT receive grades.

5. Your final grade will be calculated as follows:

1. Effort 10% (or more)
2. Homework/assignments 10%
3. Tests+quizzes 20%+5%
4. Hour Exams 30%
5. Final 25% (including an oral exam)

6. The "effort" grade will be based on regular attendance, preparation, and class participation. Students will lose points for unexcused absences, tardiness, leaving class early, poor classroom attitude, failure to regularly attend the language lab, and failure to hand in homework on time. Remember: You, the student, are the one who is learning the language; we, the instructors, can only provide you with the opportunity to learn.

7. Final grade scoring:

- | | |
|----|-------------|
| A | 92-100 |
| B+ | 85-91 |
| B | 80-84 |
| C+ | 75-79 |
| C | 70-74 |
| D | 60-69 |
| F | 59 or below |

8. Please feel free to come to our office hours when you have questions that cannot be satisfactorily solved during class time, or simply when you need extra help. But you should not get in the habit of missing class and then trying to make up what you missed during our office hours.

Finally: Welcome to class! We hope you enjoy learning Chinese and discovering the world that the language opens up for you.
